23 FEBRUARY 2022

4:00-5:00 pm CET

The German Committee Future Earth invites you to the online presentation event of the DKN position paper "Research priorities for sustainability science". With the position paper the DKN highlights pertinent research gaps and suggests forthcoming fields of research. It combines insights from global environmental change research and the environmental social sciences and humanities. This programmatic framework will form the basis of the future work program of the committee itself, and it is hoped that it will motivate other scientists to engage across disciplinary boundaries with the manifold epistemological, theoretical, and methodological challenges of sustainability science.
